Questions (true/false)

1. I have successfully completed the Github onboarding instructions, and acknowledge that I shall never run the command `git push upstream` or `git push upstream main` against the main course repository.

2. I have successfully setup my Python environment on my local machine using the setup instructions as needed, and acknowledge that I know how to submit code/assignments/exams (including this one) through my personal fork of the course github repository.

3. Assignments/exams/lab code can be submitted up to 24 hours late with no penalty, and incur a one-time 15% penalty thereafter.

4. Lab participation is required, and code must be checked in by 11:59PM on the day of the lab.

5. Lab code is graded on a complete/incomplete scale.

6. All course materials are found at https://github.com/chrislarson1/ANLY-580-FALL-2021.git.

7. If I use a Windows operating system I should strongly consider installing VirtualBox such that I can interact with the course on a unix based operating system.

8. All of my submissions will be made by pushing code/exams/assignments to my own fork of the course repository.

9. As per Georgetown policy, I will keep my fork of this repository permanently private (i.e., forever), and not share course content and work with others. I understand that the course instructor has written a bot that will check this daily.

10. I have understand the Georgetown academic integrity policies as laid out in the Georgetown Honor System Handbook, and that those policies apply to this class.

11. I understand the policies pertaining to Title IX/Sexual Misconduct, and that I pledge to do my part in making sure that this course provides a safe and inclusive working environment for everyone.
